

Training for Basketball Officials

Sponsored by the Tinker Officials Association

The Tinkers Officials Association has some outstanding basketball officials training. The training is broken down to classroom and on-the-floor instruction and is even gauged toward different levels of experience. The training is open to anyone interested in learning more about basketball officiating (and not just for members of the Tinker Officials Association.) There is a $25 fee regardless of the number of sessions you attend. Training begins on Saturday, August 21 and runs through October 8. More details on the website www.toaofficials.org.
